OGDEN COUNTRY CLUB OPENS FOR SUMMER SEASON WITH GALA COSTUME AFFAIR

Seldom has any similar affair captured both heart and hand of the smart set as did yesterday's doings, when festival mood prevailed from half after 1 until the wee small hours this morning—when all the lovers of outdoor sports turned back into childhood's days and musings to enjoy a perfect hour or two on the green sward of the golf links. The fête began with the early comers—men and women of society were clad in the costumes of medieval days and in the quieter tones and simplicity of the modern republics. Nearly every nation had its representation of the dominating figures of some distinctive period in the world's history. The colors used by the Egyptians, red, orange, green, blue and yellow, were lavish and intense. The Aztec and other primitive races found adherents also and the Japanese were idealized in Oriental style.

Not in spite of, but because of, this opening affair, Mrs. E. J. Harness, who was done up in apple green satin with skirt of the hula hula dancer with numerous lilt about her throat and ankle bracelets of the same, was a fetching picture to be sure.

Mrs. Chapin A. Day looked as if she had just stepped out of one of those gorgeous colonial frames when full length pictures were quite in vogue. Mrs. Bristol's interpretation of the Far East would create envy in the heart of the great Farrar of Butterfly fame, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Day had just returned from peasant life in Norway.

Mrs. Baker made a picture in Colonial dress, while Dr. Baker's dignified Uncle Sam was irreproachable. Mrs. J. W. Abbott might have been a boy scout in khaki, so trim and coy was she.

Mrs. Kimball wore a pirouette costume in black and white, while Mr. Kimball took the part of an Irish gentleman.

her face just beneath the brim of her sunbonnet.

Mrs. John Spargo must have been in a riding tournament, for her suit of checked cloth was faultless. Abbott Glick was said to look like mother, but that statement was challenged, so he assumed the role of "Just Liz."

Luke Wright in his Turkish cap and vest, looked the part of the young Sultan who entertained myriads of charming women folk in the tea-room. Mrs. Kirkendall essayed the yama yama man and Mrs. Hoag proved her familiarity with the Chinese costume as we know it. Mrs. Minnie Kiesel-Shearn brought with her across the seas the Norwegian costume as worn by the peasant before the war. She was quaint and picturesque, and Mr. Shearn's St. Perkins—well! somehow it just suited him.

Harold Peery's Sing role of two-colored stripes looked threatening to the law-breaker, and Billy Harris as "Robin Hood" left his voice at home.

Joe Scowcroft's khaki "Never-Rips," topped with a silk hat of other days, accentuated his distinguished manner.

Miss Edna Wattis expects to go to Turkey some time soon, hence the lovely suit so becomingly chosen, while Miss Ruth Wattis was content to interpret the American Indian before the states numbered thirteen.

Mr. Day was coquettish in his Irish suit. Mr. A. T. Wright and Ralph Bristol have missed their calling, for they were superb specimens of the colored mammites they represented.

Gene Carr was a colored jockey and W. C. Wright, as George Primrose, was good enough for even George.

Ted Abbott and Wesley Brown, who had forgotten their everyday wear, were retained as caddies. Dr. Joyce, who was dissatisfied with nature's choice, blackened one half of his head and face to further accentuate his knowledge of anatomy, while it fell to the lot of Colonel Boyd to present the modest bill of $7 for the services of seven hours of alertness.

Rumor states that up to a late hour the bill had not been paid. There were many onlookers, among them being Mrs. A. C. Abbott, Mrs. G. A. Glide, Mrs. A. T. Wright, Mrs. Gus Wright, Mrs. Nora Smith Rowe, Mrs. Joyce and her daughter Kathryn, Mr. Dix and Mr. Harness of Roy, Mr. and Mrs. Carr, Mrs. Eugene Carr.

GYPSY WOMEN FINED $25 EACH, TODAY IN POLICE COURT

"I'll have to leave this town, that's all there is to it. All the money we've made is in there."

The speaker was a Gypsy woman, member of the band that figured in a big disturbance Tuesday evening on lower Twenty-fifth street. As she spoke the woman pointed toward the desk sergeant's office and, to her walling remark, the officers in the room could almost be heard to say a fervent "Amen."

It was after the morning session of the municipal court, during which the circumstances surrounding the disturbance were rehearsed by nearly a dozen witnesses, pro and con, resulting in the finding of N. Adams, Laura Marke and Mary Mitchell, Gypsies, and Jake and Thomas Langland, Iowans, guilty of disturbing the peace. The quietest were each sentenced to serve 25 days in jail or to pay a $25 fine.

The Gypsies paid up and the Americans went to jail. The case attracted a crowd that filled the court room to capacity and occupied the time of the court more than an hour. According to the arresting officers, Sergeant Blackburn and Detective Walter L. Moore, the case at bar was only one of numerous instances where complaints have been made that the Gypsy fortune tellers on lower Twenty-fifth street have attempted, sometimes successfully, to extort money from men by questionable methods. In this case, however, it appeared that two of the men involved were parties to the disturbance at its inception and that the third, Adams, "horned in." A large club, it was said, also figured in the fracas, but the only party injured was Jake Langland who, as he put it, was "popped" in the eye by Adams.

According to Sergeant Blackburn, lower Twenty-fifth street "looked like circus day" when he arrived on the scene, and Detective Moore made this declaration stronger by saying that the situation might have developed into a riot had not the arrests been quickly made.

When her brother was called to join his regiment Mrs. Othilla C. Beals took his place as city justice in Seattle, Wash.

KNOCKED INTO GUTTER BY MAN WHO GETS 30 DAYS

Thomas Linker was sentenced this morning by Municipal Judge George S. Barker to serve thirty days in jail for violently assaulting A. L. Develbess yesterday afternoon, at Twenty-fifth street and Grant avenue. The complaining witness, who was walking along the avenue with his wife and sister immediately prior to the assault, was knocked into the gutter by Linker and rendered unconscious. His assailant, who was intoxicated at the time, was placed under arrest by Sergeant Blackburn and Detective Moore.

Frank Whalen, John Cronley and Robert Smith, vagrants, were each sentenced to serve ten days in jail, Albert Ling and J. Callahan, plain drunks, each received a five-day sentence. For drunkenness and disturbing the peace, George Shepherd was sentenced to serve ten days. Charles A. Burk and Walter Johnson, charged with drunkenness, each forfeited $5 bail.

J. Y. Rockefeller was found guilty of operating an automobile at an excessive rate of speed across the Second and Washington avenue crossing at Five Points and fined $10. He was halted by Traffic Officer J. C. Johns.

URGING PLANTING OF MORE BEETS

That the United States government has taken official cognizance of sugar industry needs in connection with the war situation is shown by word received today at the Amalgamated Sugar company offices from Washington, D. C. The government has decided to do everything in its power to urge increased sugar beet acreage for the year and has issued a bulletin, sent throughout the United States, along this line.

While sugar beet planting has practically been completed this year, the Amalgamated Sugar company officials believe that the attitude taken by the government will stimulate the growers in using their best efforts this year and increasing the acreage for the next season.

He was brought to Ogden last night by Chief of Police Browning and may be required to stand trial on a charge of grand larceny.

Hudson's arrest followed the giving of information as to the circumstances in the case to the Salt Lake officers by a member of the Ogden police department immediately after the robberies were investigated.

'JOY RIDING' DEFINED AS TRESPASS AND NOT LARCENY

Upon the ground that "joy riding" is not larceny, but trespass, District Attorney Dobbs filed a motion in the district court today asking for the dismissal of the case of the state against Tim Shugrue, charged with taking the automobile of W. E. Corey some time ago.

The district attorney stated in his formal motion, which will be brought before the district court, that as he considers the case one of trespass he will file such a charge in the municipal court. The action by District Attorney Dobbs is based upon the fact, he states, that two witnesses overheard Shugrue and another talking about using the machine for a "joy ride," which would give credence to the claim that Shugrue did not intend to steal the machine.

Pratt has given a decision in the district court favoring the Denver Metal company in its suit against Lincoln-Kemmerer Coal company. The decree was filed this morning in district court, awarding $750 as damages.

The metal company averred to court that it had bought several tons of rails and angle iron from coal company but that, despite its willingness to receive and pay for the same at $18 per ton, the same was not delivered. Damages because of increased prices necessarily paid, asked and given by the court.
